A greater vision

Dr John Cox
President, Avondale College

As I view the names of former students in the Homecoming honour years, I am impressed with the enormous contribution Avondale College graduates have made to the Seventh-day Adventist Church and to the community. Some have made a strong public impact; others radiate a quieter spirituality that touches people's lives in ways no less significant. The Lord has empowered the work and influence of so many.

The vision that inspired the students of the past lives on today as Avondale pursues its mission to offer quality education in the context of a Seventh-day Adventist worldview, values, faith and lifestyle. This mission equips young adults for service to church and community.

Welcome back to Avondale. May your vision enlarge and brighten as past and present meet in fellowship and inspiration this weekend.

Sharing the journey and the vision

Pastor Roger Nixon
President, Avondale College Alumni Association

I received a surprise phone call one evening in mid-1959 from the then dean of men at Avondale College, Pastor Des Hills. He encouraged me to continue my training for God's service. The nature of the phone call made it clear God was speaking and opening another door.

The "must dos" fell into place. A little more cash reserve, some academic preparation, one small mortgaged home on the market and, finally, a long and draining journey to Morisset in New South Wales.

Turning off Freemans Drive into Central Road in Cooranbong, my wife, Elva, and I quickly took in the old Avondale Memorial Seventh-day Adventist church and, over the road, the Avondale Retirement Village. The water tower flanked by staff houses stood further down the road. Prize-winning Jersey cows chewed the cud in the paddocks beyond. We were on campus in moments, wandering through the newish Ellen G White Memorial Building wondering what the world of academia held in store.

I have no regrets hanging up my carpenter's belt, selling and going. Avondale, I discovered, is where young adults find direction, meaning and purpose. It is a doorway through which an increasing number of students enter, a key to connecting to the needs of humanity. Few exit without experiencing change.

Homecoming is your opportunity to reconnect with Avondale, to reminisce with former classmates. Make the most of this time. I trust the sharing of golden memories enriches your journey.

Floral decoration

Sallyanne (Briden) Dehn (1979, 1981) is the designer of the Homecoming floral decoration. The class of 1958, which is leading the worship service, is celebrating its 50th anniversary. The colour, gold, which is representative of this anniversary, is portrayed in the five candles. These make a strong statement in the arrangement, which represents celebration. The use and colour of the fabric and flowers expands on this theme. We are celebrating not only a time and a place but also one of the colours in the new Avondale College logo. With the flame of the Holy Spirit giving us light and showing us the way, we pray we will all walk in the way of our Lord and God. Amen.

Brian Townend

Brian Townend was born in Wellington, New Zealand, on November 6, 1927. He received his primary and secondary education at public schools in Lower Hutt and in 1946 began the intermediate teacher training course at then New Zealand Missionary College. Brian transferred to Avondale College in 1947 to study the theological normal course, graduating in 1948.

A call to serve as sole teacher at the Royal Oak Seventh-day Adventist School in Auckland followed. The president of the church in North New Zealand described the nine-grade school as the most difficult in the region. However, Brian ran an evangelistic program and helped lead several students—one of who became a church administrator—to Christ.

Brian married Daphne Wishart in 1950. The couple accepted a call to serve as evangelists in Auckland, but a short-term emergency at the New Zealand Missionary College saw both transfer to Longburn where Brian taught maths, science and some English for the year. The following year, Brian and Daphne relocated to Stratford to help run an evangelistic program for a small company of Adventists in Stratford. They would move again in 1952 when Brian accepted a call to serve as sole teacher at the Lower Hutt Adventist Primary School.

Then, a change, Fulton College in Fiji, and the first of an almost 20-year association with the church in the Pacific islands. Brian taught Form 1 and 2 students in the college's Secondary School Department. Seven years later, he would be teaching Forms 3, 4 and 5. Brian returned to Fulton as librarian in 1965 after a four years as principal at the Vatuvonu Boarding School. He would also teach English, history and geography and qualify as a member of the New Zealand Library Association.

The Townends returned to Avondale in 1968—Brian served as librarian and as a staff member in the Education Department. Five years later, Brian accepted a call as primary school supervisor for the church's then Trans-Tasman Union Conference. His brief? To develop a more creative Adventist-oriented curriculum, something a little closer to the New Zealand model. In 1972, there were 21 schools to supervise. By 1977, that had increased to 28.

A two-year stint as head of primary teacher training at Fulton followed in 1978. In 1980, as a sponsored student, Brian completed his Masters of Arts at Pacific Union College (Napa Valley, California, USA). Although offered employment at the college, Brian and Daphne returned to Australia with 47 cartons of books for the yet-to-be completed Pacific Adventist College (PAC). From 1981 to 1982, and from Avondale, Brian developed a library for PAC. In 1983, he took 16,000 books to Papua New Guinea and, during that year, completed the library.

Brian served as librarian at Avondale for eight years until his retirement in 1993. He is a recipient of the Medallion of Merit, awarded by the Education Department of the church's South Pacific Division to acknowledge outstanding work in Adventist education.

Brian and Daphne have continued to give of their time, providing volunteer library services in 18 church institutions in Australia, Fiji, New Zealand and Papua New Guinea. Brian is a former editor of the Cooranbong Gazette and continues to serve as its reporter. He also operates the in-house television channel for the Avondale Retirement Village.

The Avondale College Alumni Association honours Brian Townend for his selfless service to the Adventist Church, for his outstanding contribution to Adventist education and for his dedication to lifelong learning.

Class of 1938

Beryl Stocken

Beryl Stocken clearly remembers the wet weekend in Warburton, Victoria, 1934 when the then 17-year-old came of age. She and brother Keith stayed home while the rest of the family visited her terminally ill father in the Sydney Adventist Hospital. The constant rain caused flooding, and try as they might, Keith and Beryl could not protect all of the furniture in their grandmother's house, located on the banks of the Yarra River. They assessed the damage as the waters receded. She speaks of carrying sodden, dirty blankets up the hill to home to soak. "I'll never forget the feeling of utter helplessness."

Then, a telegram: her father—aged only 43—had died. "This was devastating," says Beryl. "I became angry and bitter."

She would come to accept her father's death a year later. "Looking back as a family, we see the impact this has had on our lives—binding us together and strengthening our reliance on our Heavenly Father."

This faith would be tested by more than 22 years of service with husband Syd in Papua New Guinea and the Solomon Islands. Beryl's interest became training women in welfare work. In later years, Beryl's children and grandchildren urged her to become computer literate, which made it possible for her to produce PowerPoints of her and Syd's mission work. She eventually created a DVD called The Voice in the Jungle, depicting the use of finger operated gramophones in spreading the gospel to the illiterate in the early 1950s.

"It is a great privilege to represent the 1938 graduation class, of which the majority are now resting," says Beryl. "Our motto was 'Aflame for God.' I'm sure we all did our best with God's help to make this a part of our lives."

The class of 1938 honours Beryl Stocken for her faith in God and for her mission service.

Class of 1948

Percy Holmes

Percy Holmes always felt his calling was to be a minister. People were a priority for him. He enjoyed developing close relationships with them, encouraging them and bringing them to Christ.

His denominational service began in 1949, the year after he graduated as class president from Avondale. He spent three years in Lismore—two as the minister of the Seventh-day Adventist church there—before running missions in Sydney and on the Central Coast of New South Wales. Two significant events marked his early years in ministry—his marriage to Deirdre Ganter in 1950 and his ordination in 1952.

Percy would then serve for about 15 years as an evangelist, publishing director and mission president in the Solomon Islands. The death of his wife's father and the illness of his mother saw Percy return temporarily with his family to Australia in 1957. During this break, Percy helped run a mission in Rockhampton then ministered in Brisbane. He returned to the islands in 1960.

On his permanent return to Australia, Percy ministered at Adventist churches in Warrnambool, Croydon and Lilydale, Warburton, Warragul, and Ballarat, Ararat and Wendouree, all in Victoria. He retired in 1989 but continued to minister, visiting all the missing members of churches on the Central Coast. He would also volunteer for a year on Lord Howe Island and as chaplain to off campus students at Avondale. A stroke in 2000 affected his speech, but his zeal for ministry continued as he continued to handbill around Cooranbong.

The class of 1948 honours Percy Holmes for his dedication to ministry and for his love of Jesus Christ, the "centre of our message."

Class of 1958 Elwin Ferris

Elwin Ferris could be a part Pacific islander.

Born to missionary parents, he spent the first 11 years of his life in Fiji and learned English only while on furlough in Australia.

He remembers being shipwrecked in Tonga when only 12 years of age. A once-in-a-year change in the sea current took Elwin and the seven others on board the MV Endeavour off course. The dinghy on the boat would take only four people, so the other four swam to a sand atoll two kilometres away. All eight were picked up by a passing sail boat 24 hours later. Elwin says his interest in engineering—he graduated from the building construction course at Avondale in 1958—grew from similar boating experiences with his father and from maintaining the boats his father used as a means of transportation.

Elwin would later serve as the manager for Western Highlands Timber in Papua New Guinea (1964-1968) and as director of the Adventist Development and Relief Agency in the Seventh-day Adventist Church's Central Pacific Union Mission (1989-1996).

He has also constructed 62 churches, seven community centres, three clinics and three schools as a coordinator of fly'n'builds in the Pacific.

He says these mission trips not only encouraged his Australian and New Zealand friends to serve but also helped Pacific islanders achieve goals they would not have without help.

"I appreciate my missionary heritage and that God has enabled me to give just a little back to others," says Elwin. "May He continue to bless."

Elwin is now retired "but working harder than ever," recently sending six containers of supplies to Papua New Guinea and the Solomon Islands.

The class of 1958 honours Elwin Ferris for his missionary spirit and for his service to the peoples of the Pacific islands.

Class of 1968 Robyn Priestley

Avondale College is Robyn Priestley's life, "and the place where I have been very contented," she says.

This satisfaction stems not from academic achievement—Robyn graduated with a Bachelor of Arts and, with former lecturer Dr Noel Clapham's encouragement, completed all the remaining history subjects a year later—but from experiencing nurture in its broadest definition. "I doubt I would have survived as a timid 18-year-old in a large university."

Robyn's parent's, in this case, knew best. Avondale or Sydney Adventist Hospital (the San), they said, but nursing seemed too daunting. "I wasn't against the idea," says Robyn, "but now it seems a strange way to determine a career."

Robyn's father served in the medical corps of the New Zealand Army during World War II and worked for the Sanitarium Health Food Company. Her mother trained as a nurse at the San. Her sister also trained at the San and is an infant intensive care nurse. "I've had wonderful, supportive parents whose complete love and acceptance has never been in doubt," she says.

Robyn's passion for ethical and social justice issues may have grown out of this upbringing and of her time at Avondale. It has certainly influenced some of the roles—including that of the first affirmative action officer "in the days when things like gender neutral language were still considered quaint and entertaining"—in which she has served. Robyn is currently a senior lecturer in the Faculty of Arts and chair of the Academic Board.

"I heard someone say recently they wanted to be really alive until they died," says Robyn, "and that is definitely a sentiment which I echo."

The class of 1968 honours Robyn Priestley for reminding us through her study of history of the value of social responsibility.

Class of 1978

David King

David King blows his own trumpet, and so he should—he has an enviable record of accomplishments as an instrumentalist and conductor and is at the forefront of music education.

David studied trumpet and cornet at the Sydney Conservatorium of Music and music education at Avondale College.

In 1982, as Australian cornet champion, he received a scholarship to study band musicianship at Salford College in Manchester, England, where he graduated with distinction in performance in 1985. In 2000, he completed his Doctor of Musical Arts (DMA), becoming the first recipient of a performance research doctorate awarded within the British higher education sector.

David has pursued a career as a cornet soloist winning the title North of England Solo Champion three times and remaining unbeaten on B<sup>b</sup> cornet at the British Open Solo Championships for five consecutive years.

Representing the United Kingdom, he won the International Brass Musician of the Year in 1992.

As a conductor, David has won the European Brass Band Championships 10 times, twice with Black Dyke Mills Band and eight times with the Yorkshire Building Society Band. In 2002, he directed the Massed Bands of the North West of England during the closing ceremony of the Manchester Commonwealth Games. In 2006, he became conductor in residence to Her Majesty's Band of the Coldstream Guards.

And working with German designer Thomas Lubitz, David has developed a new range of brass instruments for Yamaha called the Xeno Series. He is currently chair of music (performance) at the University of Salford.

The class of 1978 honours David King for his services to music.

Class of 1983

Graeme Fitzclarence

Sickness robbed Graeme Fitzclarence of a promising career as a tradesperson, so it is ironic the man who graduated from automotive engineering at Avondale College is now completing a Bachelor of Medicine and Bachelor of Surgery at the University of Western Australia.

Three years after graduating, Graeme returned to New South Wales to begin an apprenticeship as a spray painter—he would eventually win apprentice of the decade. Two years later, he opened his own businesses in Cooranbong. Graeme ran the business for five years before being diagnosed with idiopathic dilative cardiomyopathy. “I had to leave my trade and sell the businesses,” he says.

Graeme and his wife, Cherelle, and children Jared, Chrysten and Ethan travelled around Australia over the next year before settling temporarily back in Cooranbong—they moved to the Northern Territory a year later. The Katherine floods came in 1998. After the floods, Graeme suffered an acute chronic heart failure. An intensive care unit transferred him to Royal Perth Hospital. A heart transplant followed in 2000. The Fitzclarences moved to Broome a year later. This marked the beginning of Graeme's career change. He enrolled at the then Northern Territory University, graduating in 2005 with a Bachelor of Nursing and working that and the next year as a nurse and medic at mines sites and in hospitals. The family moved back to Perth where Graeme continues to manage his family's property portfolio and to study.

Graeme has twice directly asked God for guidance and direction in his life. “I even gave Him an ultimatum,” he says. The good news? “He unequivocally answered both times. Awesome.”

The class of 1983 honours Graeme Fitzclarence for showing how faith in God helps overcome adversity.

Class of 1988

Kimberley Houlston

A God thing.

This is how Kimberley (Deed) Houlston describes her burgeoning family ministries career.

Kimberley has essentially worked with children in an educational capacity for the past 20 years, including more than five years at a school for students with behavioural difficulties and eight years as a support teacher for learning assistance at public schools in the Hunter region of New South Wales.

A precursor to this form of ministry may have been a trip to Emerald, Queensland, to help run a Vacation Bible School with other Avondale students. But the clear call came while editing a video for a church fundraiser in 2001. “After several hours of frustration, I stopped and said to God, ‘This is for you. It’s not working. What do you really want me to do?’” says Kimberley. “I walked out of the study and into the lounge room, picked up my guitar, sat down and wrote a song. It was though God had been waiting for me to ask that question so He could begin to show me some of the plans He had for me.”

Kimberley has now written hundreds of songs, produced about a dozen CDs and DVDs, including a 13-part series that airs internationally on cable and satellite television, built a recording studio, developed websites and toured Fiji, New South Wales, Papua New Guinea and Queensland as director of the self-supporting Abide Family Ministries.

“We—[husband Robert and sons Trent and Taylor]—are committed to following where God leads,” says Kimberley. The family has experienced the good, bad and unexpected, “but if God has called you to do something,” says Kimberley, “He will give you the skills or the people to help you to do it.”

The class of 1988 honours Kimberley Houlston for sharing her faith with families worldwide through music and multimedia.

Class of 1998

Elia Crevar

This is the story of the life of Elia Crevar.

It begins on February 16, 1973, in Ontario, Canada, but scan forward to 1992, the year the Sydney Adventist College alumnus first attends Avondale. The teaching reputation of the college and a need to experience independence influence his decision.

Two thousand and four is also a significant year. Wife Melinda (nee McMahon—“none of this equal rights business”) agrees to marry Elia after essentially playing the heroine in a Hollywood movie-type proposal that included briefcase drops, mystery mobile phone plants, a boat ride, a man in a cloak . . . The two married on May 30 and now have a mini fox terrier. They travelled recently to Thailand, Malaysia and Vietnam.

Visiting a reserve to wash and feed abused elephants served as one of the highlights of the trip. It also illustrates one of Elia’s other personality traits—that of altruism, particularly toward young adults.

Elia began ministering to young adults in schools and on streets as a member of the Seventh-day Adventist Church in northern New South Wales’ Mega-Life bus team in 1996. After graduating from Avondale in 1998, Elia served as high and primary school chaplain and taught religious studies at Central Coast Adventist School. He now serves as the school’s full-time high school chaplain.

And his interest in creative ministry continues in partnership with The Haven Adventist Church, where Elia served for two years as a youth volunteer.

One of Elia’s goals is to learn to swallow tablets in less than four minutes. Another is to continue ministering to young adults, “who continue to amaze and inspire me.”

The class of 1998 honours Elia Crevar for his creative ministry to young adults.

Money raised from the Alumni Heritage Walk helps to preserve and restore the historical features of Avondale's Lake Macquarie campus.

Engrave your name in stone: preserve our heritage

The unveiling of a black marble plaque in the pathway outside Bethel Hall on August 28, 1999, marked the beginning of Avondale College's Alumni Heritage Walk. The walk honours students who have graduated, current and former staff members, former students and current and former members of the college council.

The first paver in the walk bears the name of Laura Kent, at 108, Avondale's oldest living alumni until her death earlier this year. At the launch of the walk, and in the presence of four family generations, Laura rose to her feet and in a strong, resonant voice gave testimony to the value of Avondale for her family and the Seventh-day Adventist Church.

The walk is a fundraising project of the Avondale College Alumni Association. A tax-deductible donation of $175 for each paver provides at least $100 for the association's Alumni Heritage Walk Trust Fund. The association uses the money in the fund to preserve and restore the heritage features of Avondale's Lake Macquarie campus.

A paver in the walk measures 220 millimetres in length, 110 millimetres in width and 30 millimetres in height. It is etched with the given, family and maiden name (if applicable) of an Avondale alumni and the alumni's final year at the college.

A feature of the walk is its informality. The pavers are placed randomly rather than alphabetically or chronologically. However, the location of each paver is recorded in a bound register.

Contact the alumni association at Avondale College (see masthead for contact details) to add your name to the Alumni Heritage Walk and to preserve and restore the heritage of Avondale College. Avondale will engrave your name in stone and place a paver in this memorable pathway as a permanent reminder of your generous donation to your alma mater.
